Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-13, 16-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Taking claim 1 as exemplary, the claim is not directed to a practical application, there is no physical transformation nor is a useful, concrete and tangible result produced. The claim is directed to functional descriptive material which, per se, is not statutory. A data transformation is not a physical transformation. Data, by definition, is intangible, so the claim must go further to have a tangible result. The manipulation of data in a computer is not, in and of itself, sufficient for establishing that a claim is statutory. Thus, the claim merely results with a step of checking; this is not a useful, concrete and tangible result.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 14-15 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Lam et al. [U.S. Patent #5,084,824] disclose generating a simulation model according to terminal biases and boolean equations determined in accordance with a set of rules. Stanley et al. [U.S. Patent Application Publication #2004/0049370] disclose circuit simulation that includes matrix stamping.
